

Château Rivière Rosé

LANGUEDOC-ROUSSILLON (FRANCE)

Located in the heart of Minervois, Château Rivière has south facing slopes with clay-limestone soil.

Grapes: Syrah & Grenache

Viniculture: hand harvested with low temperature fermentation

Alcohol: 13.5% vol.

Tasting Notes

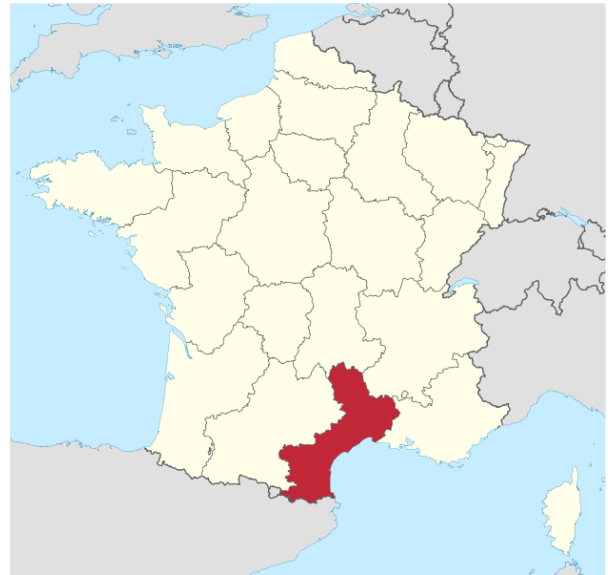

Appearance: rose petal color with bright reflections

Nose: intense raspberry and strawberry aromas

Palate: fleshy and tasty, revealing hints of redcurrant and cherry

Awards & Accolades:

2011 Gold medal in Paris

Languedoc-Roussillon Wine Region of France

Climate: Languedoc is usually warm and dry throughout the year, and has very mild winters. It borders the Mediterranean Sea on one side of the region, which lends more warmth to the climate.

Languedoc is the largest wine-producing area in France; it produces more wine in this area than in the entire United States. This is also one of the most innovative wine regions in the world today thanks to innovative wine producers that have been changing the wines produced in this area since the 1990s.

A wide variety of grapes are grown in this region including: syrah, grenache, cabernet sauvignon, and chardonnay. There are four AOC regions within Languedoc, or wines can be classified as "Vins de Pays d'Oc".

Minervois is located north of Corbières, and is known for producing soft and juicy red wines. The predominant grape grown here is Syrah, and can have rich berried flavors.